three weeks ago he threatened to kill her.

Hewitt Divorce. Margaret Hewitt wants a divorce from her husband, Zachariah Hewitt on the grounds of failure to provide. The petition states that the parties were married July 1, 1879, and that for the past two years the defendant has failed to provide the necessities of life.

Threw Her on a Stove. Elizabeth Andrews, who her husband, Amos J. Andrews, has not treated her right for the past year or more, and for that reason she asks the district court to grant her a decree of divorce.

Mrs. Andrews alleges that Amos has been cruel to her and, at times, inhuman. He is accused of having a sudden disposition of refusing to speak to the plaintiff, except in an insulting way, of swearing at the plaintiff and using harsh words. The plaintiff also states that about a year ago the defendant threw her upon a stove, thereby injuring her considerably, and that for the past six months the defendant has utterly failed to provide the necessities of life for the plaintiff and three children, and that by reason of that she has been compelled to go in debt at the stores.

The complaint sets forth that the parties were married at Ogden, Aug. 25, 1898, and that there are three children. Mrs. Andrews asks for a decree of divorce, custody of the children, alimony, costs, attorney fees, use of the home at 340 Patterson avenue, and, finally, a deed for all the real property held in the name of the defendant.

DECEPTION IN WEIGHING AND MEASURING.

One of the most elementary methods of deception is to tamper with the measures. The small huckster drives nails through the sides of his quart measure, and bends down the points inside. A more skillful merchant inserts a false bottom. The measure is deeply indented, invariably on the inside. Whether such a measure be used for apples, potatoes, or some liquid it, of course gives short measure in direct ratio to the depth of the dents. Without meaning to palliate this class of offenses, the authorities are not chiefly concerned with them. The total loss to the public from it is besides a crime easily dealt with. A hasty examination of the scales or measures is soon made and the case for prosecution easily prepared. Few intelligent purchasers are deceived.

In running down these offenders, the authorities often find that such cheating has been forced upon them by the methods of powerful competitors, either the department stores or the chain stores. The smaller dealer finds himself undersold by his rival who is enabled to cut prices by first cutting weights or measures. To hold his trade the small trader imitates his rival, and the struggle thus commences spreads rapidly. An entire neighborhood is soon corrupted. The extent of this deliberate deception is astonishing. During a careful investigation of conditions in New York city in which 617 places were visited and some 2557 sets of scales, weights, measures were examined, it was found that 24.9 per cent of the scales were 10 per cent or more short, 15.7 per cent of the weights were short 10 per cent or more and 50.1 per cent of the weights were 10 per cent or more off. A very trifling proportion of these errors was accidental. The percentage of weights and measures causing a loss to the customer was 56.32, while the percentage of loss to the dealer was but 2.37—a suggestive contrast.—Francis Arnold Collins in the American Review of Reviews.

BUILDINGS SUFFOCATED NOW BEING ERECTED TO DEATH AT HOME

The Salt Lake & Ogden railway company has a force of men at work laying the concrete base for the roadbed on Lincoln avenue, between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth streets, the foreman having the work in hand, stating that the work will be completed within the next three days, if weather conditions continue favorable. The roadway has been open for a number of months, due to the fact, as stated by the company, that it has been impossible to get material from the factories.

The finishing touches to the painting on the cornice of the Marton hotel, at the corner of Lincoln and Twenty-fifth street, are being made and the roof of the entire structure has been completely covered. Carpenters are busily engaged building the partitions of the rooms of the two upper floors.

The lathers are at work and the plasterers will begin work in the early part of next week. The parties having to do with the plumbing and heating of the place state that the plumbing will all be done and the heating plant completed by Christmas time.

A large force of men are at work on the Browning business block and the Peery block on Hudson avenue.

TRANSFORMATION OF LONDON.

It may also be said that it is only within the last twenty years that London has begun to put on the appearance of a great metropolis. The old square mile known as the City, over which the Lord Mayor presides has possessed a certain gloomy dignity for many years, and this has scarcely altered; but the city is no longer London in the conception of the visitor or the Londoner himself.

Westminster or the West End is now the center of London, and there the changes in the last few years have been immense in number and importance. The Strand is still in the process of slow alteration from a sort of bowery to a splendid metropolitan avenue of trade. The creation of Kingsway and Aldwych in place of the slums of Seven Dials will in a few years more provide another imposing thoroughfare of theatres, hotels and modern business places. Whitehall and its vicinity have become a vast array of modern architecturally beautiful government buildings.

Piccadilly is in progress of transformation, which will include the widening of this famous thoroughfare. Immense sums are being spent out of the municipal funds for their improvements, to which are added still larger amounts of private capital. The Kingsway improvement alone has already cost the taxpayers $16,000,000.

The latest important change to approach completion is in connection with the national memorial to Queen Victoria. The chief feature of this is the great monumental erection in the large space in front of Buckingham Palace.

The work was undertaken immediately after the accession of Edward VII, but in the nine years of his reign it had advanced only a little beyond the completion of the foundation and the erection of the fountain basins which flank it. The funeral procession of the late king marched slowly past the building which concealed most of the construction that is to express the nation's tribute to his predecessor.

This memorial scheme included the broadening of the Mall through St. James' park and the cutting through of an extension or new avenue at the lower end into Trafalgar square. This portion of the work has just been completed and it includes the erection of three magnificent arches through which the new avenue will debouch into the square. The general effect is to create one of the most impressive sights in London.

You can get a broad, sweeping view from Trafalgar square through the great arches along a magnificent avenue flanked by the abundant green of parks to Buckingham Palace, nearly half a mile away at the further extremity. Here in the very heart of London there has been created suddenly and with comparatively little trouble and expense a great avenue rivaling the Champs Elysees in dignity and beauty. Within a few days it will be thrown open to the public. London dispatch to New York Sun.

WHAT EVERY MAN KNOWS

That a clean past, a good heart and a fine figure won't make up for a lack in finances.

That the price of meat is soaring.

That when a girl begins to tell what she knows about an actress is coming to town she expects you to ask her to see the show.

That it is cheaper to go with a girl who owns an automobile than to hire taxicabs.

That when he telephones sweetly to his wife and asks her what she is going to do, he can go to the matinee without meeting there.

That if he tells his wife he stayed out late with a man who kept telling him how beautiful and charming she is, she will forgive him.

That powder rubs off, and that lip sticks are greasy.

That when a girl refuses to make a date with you "so far ahead" she has some other date in view.

That you can't buy women's hats for a nickel.

That giving a wife an allowance is cheaper than giving her free reign on a charge account.

ELIHU ROOT ON ACCURACY.

Senator Root at Senator Depew's farewell dinner in his honor in Washington said, about his coming European tour:

"Well, I hope I'll gather over there more accurate information than any which Lady Salisbury's housekeeper used to give her American visitors. In showing American ladies other visitors over Salisbury castle, would always pause before a painting of Catherine de Medici and say: 'This lovely painting is a portrait of Catherine de Medici, sister of Venus de Medici.'—Washington Star."

NUISANCE.

"Isn't it a relief to have those 'children of yours back in school again?' 'Not much. They just learn a lot of new questions to ask.'—Cleveland Leader."

No Witnesses.

Attorney General Wickensham, at a dinner in Washington, said of a wrong-headed financier: "His methods are so deplorable that when he tries to defend them he goes to pieces."

In fact he reminds me of an old man who was brought up before a country judge. "Jethro," said the judge, "you are accused of stealing General Johnson's chickens. Have you any witnesses?" "No, sah," old Jethro answered haughtily. "I had none, sah. I won't steal chickens befo' witnesses, sah."—Minneapolis Journal.

Read how two egg-raisers cleared in one year $6.41 per hen, or over $12,000 PER YEAR on their flock of 1953 hens

THE ordinary poultryman will say it can't be done—that $2 to $3 per hen is the very utmost that even an expert can make, clear. He will say that even if a few experienced men could make $6.41 per hen, it is impossible for two mere beginners to do it.

And yet that is exactly what the Cornings, father and son, DID DO in 1908. Starting five years ago with only 30 hens, with no experience, with Prof. Gowell's bulletins as their foundation, with many experiments and much hard work, this was the result in 1908—over $12,000 profit from 1953 laying pullets. Read the whole story in the

CORNING EGG BOOK

(entitled "$6.41 per Hen per year"). Not what the Cornings might do, or could do, or want to do, but what they DID DO. No impossibilities, no wild promises of fortunes from a few hens in a dry-goods box. Simply a cool, careful, comprehensive account of how scientific egg-raising makes money ($12,000 per year) for two hard-headed business men.

Are All Recognized Poultry Systems Back Numbers?

The Corning Egg Book tells everything—where the Cornings find their market, why they raise only white-shelled, sterile eggs, how they keep hens laying regularly in winter, when they hatch chicks that are to do their best work in December and January, how to mix the feed that produces the most eggs, how to prevent losses, how they found the best breed for egg-producing, and how their whole system works to that end—eggs, eggs, EGGS. Many photographs of the Cornings' Sunny Slope Farm, with complete working plans of their buildings, showing brooder and laying houses, colony houses, breeding pens, door and floor construction, etc., etc. From these plans any builder can reproduce the plant, in whole or in part.

(This last winter the Cornings had 3,000 hens, and in January were getting 75 cents per dozen for eggs.)

So important has the poultry industry of this country become, and so valuable do we consider this book to all poultry owners, that we have made arrangements with the publishers of the Corning Egg Book which enable us to make the following extraordinary offer:

HE TOOK AN INGERSOLL WATCH

Charged with stealing a watch valued at $1, Thomas Koerkos was arraigned in police court this morning and his case continued because of the prisoner's plea that he could not understand the reading of the complaint. Despite the meager value of the timepiece, Koerkos is charged with robbery.

The complaint alleges that a felony has been committed, inasmuch as Koerkos assaulted Rose D. Reat and took from him, by force, a watch, which happened to be an Ingersoll variety. Koerkos will probably be given a preliminary hearing Monday morning.

STRANGE LAKES OF MICHIGAN.

Five thousand lakes of all sizes is the proud total claimed by the state of Michigan. Some of them are mysterious bodies having neither inlet nor outlet, nor so far as can be discovered by sounding, bottom.

Many of the smaller lakes, according to the Fur News, are slowly growing over and have wide margins of tough soil that will support the weight of a man, although merely resting on water or a thin mud of unknown depth.

These margins tremble to the tread and only for many feet around when stepped upon. There are instances where a lake has become entirely overgrown and for so long a period that the surface becomes solid and the existence of water underneath is unsuspected.

The Pere Marquette Railroad Company, when building a branch between Grand Rapids and Lansing, returned to the work one morning to find that several rods of roadbed had disappeared during the night and a considerable lake had taken its place. Thousands of feet of timber and many carloads of earth were dumped in before bottom was found and the road had anything but a firm foundation. The pressure of the displaced water heaved the earth and cracked it for some distance around, tilting large forest trees, some of which fell.

Water came up through these crevices, bringing eyeless fish, both bass and bullheads, convincing certain former skeptics that when any organ of sense or locomotion falls into disuse it degenerates and is finally lost. Probably these fish were the descendants of others that had lived in darkness for ages.

A small lake in Bowne township, supposed by the rural folk to be bottomless, swallowed up a full half acre at one gulp a few years ago, and where the slide took place the water is apparently as deep as ever.

In the extreme western edge of Iowa country there is a little lake of about three acres in area; it is without any visible feeders or outlet. It is surrounded by woods on the high land, while its margin is grown up to shrubs and flags and grasses peculiar to the ordinary swamp.

This is another of these mysterious water holes, termed bottomless, one party having fished about 150 feet without finding bottom. The water is red and unfit to drink and millions of minute particles of vegetable matter are held in suspension and are in motion as if stirred by force of an undercurrent or boiling springs.

The only fish are big-mouthed bass and bullheads. For all that the water seems to be so swampy in character it does not detract from the flavor of the fish, probably owing to the fact of its being of better quality in its lower depths.

Sagles lake, in Kent county, is formed like a great horseshoe and is about seven miles in circumference. It has been sounded in one place and showed a depth of 250 feet. It has but one insignificant feeder and the natural evaporation must be considerable, and yet it has an outlet which flows water sufficient for power to drive a sawmill and gristmill, proving that it is fed by heavy flowing springs that man has never seen. The water is clear blue and cold, and the bottom is hard marl lime.—New York Sun.

THRIFT OF THE FRENCH PEOPLE.

United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew returned recently by the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinz Wilhelms from a trip of six weeks abroad, unprepared to give any opinion on the trouble in the Republican party in this state. He said he had not had time to study the situation, and that after he had visited Beverly, Sagamore Hill and Ulton he might announce himself. He did say that the Tatt administration tended to stability.

Senator Depew went from the steamship to Coney Island, where he engaged rooms at the Oriental hotel for the rest of the summer. He was only four days in London and spent the rest of his time in France with Mrs. Depew.

The senator had much to say of France, which he called the treasure-house of the world, the only lender of money of the countries. Although France had had the worst crops this year since 1837, she was rich and prosperous nevertheless. The people in every kind of employment save every year about $500,000,000 and turn all of it over to a syndicate of French bankers for investment. The French money holders began investing heavily in American securities more than a year ago, the senator said. The last big stock flurry here frightened them, and they not only stopped buying but dumped their holdings into the market, thus adding to the trouble.

The senator said the French did not understand the financial game here, but that they were getting on to it, and when they knew it better, say within a few years, the French market would take many of our securities. He never had found Frenchmen asking for tips on the market on his previous visits to Paris. This time he was overwhelmed with requests for inside information, which, not having, he did not offer.—New York Sun.

STOCKS WENT HIGHER ON BANK STATEMENT

New York, Nov. 19.—Moderately active dealings carried opening prices of stocks today a fraction higher. United States Steel and Southern Pacific were about the only exceptions with fractional declines. Missouri Pacific rose 1 he was overwhelmed with requests for inside information, which, not having, he did not offer.—New York Sun.

Opening gains were extended a trifle but supporters were not inclined to do much. Delaware & Hudson rose 2.

The market closed steady. The expectation of a good bank statement held prices. Union Pacific and United States Steel were up a large fraction.
